RODE BY ROWS OF SKELETONS

Owner of Dairy Farm in Mexico Narrates Tale of Horror—His Place Devastated—Came Through Safely

LAREDO, Tex., July 14.—George Ogden and sixteen members of his family arrived here today saying they had been driven from Mexico by persecution of bands of alleged soldiers. The party came from Villa Guerrero, a hundred miles southwest of Tampico, by wagon, having been on the road since June 8. Ogden said he left the wreck of what might have been an eight-hundred acre dairy farm. His family is going to Marlin, Texas.

"We encountered," he said, "describing the long wagon ride, 'hundreds of skeletons. Frequently we were compelled to get out of the wagon and place it to one side to avoid riding over human bones. Before the past three months we had not been seriously molested in Mexico, but then various factors began confiscating our supplies and humiliated us when I made protests, threatened us with death."

The Ogden party consisted of himself, his three sons, their wives and ten small children, mostly babies.

Dr. E. V. Hobnet, state veterinarian, returned Wednesday from Prague, where he was called to inspect some sick cattle. He found the sickness had been caused by eating larcupus cattle in various parts of the state have been similarly affected this year. The weeds has grown very rank on account of the excessive moisture.
